

Temp Week

little help while an employee is on leave, some may use a hundred or more people to help out on a special project, and others staff entire departments using temps.

Working as a temp can be a flexible alternative as a career lifestyle or a bridge to regular, full-time employment opportunities. It provides an opportunity to showcase your talents to a wide variety of potential employers. And if you're an Olsten temp, you have access to free training in the use of important business computer software programs like Microsoft Word, Wordperfect, Excel and others.

The four St. Louis area Olstens thanked their employees in a number of ways. Cookies-and-punch type parties were given on pay day of that week, and employees were given an Olsten "sipper cup" -- those tall plastic drinking whatchamacallits with the snap-on lids and thick, ribbed, lidded straws.

Each office selected two special people known for their outstanding attendance, sterling work performance, and consistently positive attitude. Each was given a gift and a certificate of thanks. Also, a notice was printed in the Post-Dispatch with their names and a listing of their virtues. In case you missed the ad, here are those names again:

Westport - Lula Grant & Jennifer Ford

Downtown - Larry Richardson & Ethyl Byndom

Sunset Hills - Barry Fone & Marjorie Neel

St. Peters - Deborah Osburn & Alan Bell
